

ASSOCIATION MET

Teachers of this County Convened Here Last Week.

TO MEET AGAIN, OCTOBER

The Association Will Meet With Southeast Missouri Teachers.

At the meeting of the County Teachers' Association which convened here Wednesday and Thursday, of last week, organized by electing J. T. McDonald, President and Miss Clara Tacke, Secretary.

Enrollment—Seventy teachers and twenty-five visitors. There are eighty-eight rural teachers in the county, and a number of these had begun teaching, making seventy an excellent enrollment.

A talk on the "General Outline of Work the Coming Year," was made by J. T. McDonald and followed by a number of other discussions as follows:

"Recreation of School Games, How to Direct and Control," by Lloyd Macom.

"Contests and School Exhibits; How to Induce and Interest Them," was ably discussed by H. R. Stephenson.

"What Can Be Done Before School Opening That Will be for the Welfare of the School," by W. A. Rau.

"How to Secure Co-operation of School Board and Parents," by Jesse G. Crow.

The association decided to hold their fall county meeting in connection with the Southeast Missouri Teachers Association the latter part of October.

The program was interspersed and highly entertained by the male quartette, Strong, Rudert, Schleiner and Wilkening; and readings by Miss Archie Matthews.

RESOLUTIONS

We, the teachers of Cape Girardeau county, believing that we can do better work, and more of it under conditions more favorable than those which confronts the majority of us, and personally believing in protecting the health of the school children, pledged ourselves to the following:

1. A better system of heating, lighting and ventilation for the rural and village schools.

2. That the school houses be painted inside and out.

3. Better school apparatus and equipment.

4. We are in favor of beautifying both buildings and the grounds.

5. We most heartily endorse Supt. McDonald's common sense and practical suggestions as presented to us at this meeting. We commend his business-like ideas and pledge to him our loyal support in endeavoring to carry out the work for the betterment of rural school conditions.

6. That the thanks of the association be tendered to Prof. W. W. Martin for his able assistance in presenting the course of study; also to Prof. L. R. Johnson for his timely suggestions for "clean up day."

7. We wish to thank the County Court for their courtesy in extending the use of the court room and to the citizens of Jackson for their hospitality.

We resolve that these resolutions be presented to the papers for publication.

Scarlet Fever.

The following notes are taken from Dr. Ostler, of Oxford University, England and Dr. A. W. Ferriss, of Bellevue Hospital New York.

Scarlet Fever is a contagious disease and is characterized by fever, sore throat, a bright red eruption, and a tendency to acute inflammation of the kidneys. Children are chiefly affected. It is extremely infectious and contagious, and has been carried by books, papers, and clothing for long distances. There are three kinds which we will designate by numbers, one, two and three, the first being the mildest, and the last the most severe.

The disease begins as a rule suddenly, with a chill, vomiting, headache, languor, pains in the back and limbs, and a loss of appetite. The temperature rises to 103 or 105, and remains during the course of the disease. After from 12 to 36 hours the rash appears on the chest or neck, and spreads over the entire body, until it becomes a bright red. About the fifth day the rash begins to fade and the body is covered by a branny like scales which peel off. During this stage it is considered most contagious. In severe cases when the rash begins to fade, the mental faculties are dulled, delirium is frequent, particularly toward night, and drowsiness, deepening to stupor, supervenes. Death may occur at this time, or it may come later from various complications. The principle of these are acute kidney disease, or inflammation of the ear, meningitis, abscess of the brain, or blood poison. The mortality in scarletina may be low in mild epidemics, but in others rise to 30 or 40 per cent.

Inflammation of the mucous membranes, of the pharynx, larynx, tonsils, and bronchials are of almost constant occurrence. This inflammation may be simply catarrhal, or more rarely, diphtheritic, or still more rarely gangrenous in nature. A late case in this town was gangrenous. The Klebs-Loeffler bacillus or bacillus of true diphtheria is sometimes present in scarlet fever. It leaves the victim more susceptible to other diseases, such as heart disease, pneumonia, and other lung diseases than they were formerly.

During the period of peeling off the body should be washed night and morning with soap and warm water, and in the intervals smeared and rubbed with carbolic oil or ointment to prevent the particles from spreading the disease. This should be kept up for at least two weeks after the peeling has ceased.

At least six weeks should elapse before the patient is allowed to mix with his fellows.

Hotel Burned.

Last Monday the Schumer Springs Hotel caught fire and was damaged to the extent of about one thousand dollars.

The fire started upstairs in the stair-casing and ranged downward, destroying the stairs and damaging several rooms before it could be extinguished.

Roosevelt Cautions Insurgents and Says He is "Progressive."

JEFFERSON CITY LETTER

Sherman Urges Regular Republican Procedure.

Missouri has been honored with the presence and counsel of two of the great National leaders of the Republican party, former President Roosevelt and Vice-President Sherman.

Though they may not be found in harmony with each other concerning party policies in their own state, New York, they are both accepted in the West as National party leaders, and were received graciously in Missouri.

Col. Roosevelt has traveled through several states and had made a number of speeches before he appeared at Kansas City September 1. There he was accorded a reception more cordial, more enthusiastic and more demonstrative than on the occasion of either of his visits to the West while president. He spoke to a vast crowd in the convention hall at night but his speech had no direct bearing on the present campaign. It was at a dinner given in his honor by the Commercial Club that he said what all Missouri and Western Republicans have been waiting to hear. It was not a part of his set speech but an incident.

A little song heard at the banquet—"Has Anybody Here Seen Teddy?"—contained the line—"He's insurgent through and through." Seizing this as occasion for expressing what he wanted to say in his speech, but could not, consistently with the occasion, Col. Roosevelt gratified his friends, Republicans and Democrats alike, by saying:

"Among the songs which have been sung here this afternoon is one which is evidently written to gain knowledge of my whereabouts. The song, of course, could not be improved upon, but its technique might be bettered were the word progressive substituted for the word insurgent."

"I am equally anxious to make the gentlemen who want to mark time or fall back come forward, and I also want to make those exuberant progressives who desire to exceed the speed limit remember they must not behave as if the bridle were off."

So Col. Roosevelt, in Missouri, pronounced himself a Progressive Republican and cautioned his friends against the extremes of Insurgency. There he stands.

To Wed.

The relatives and friends of Mrs. James Russell, of Bird's Point, Mo., have received invitations to the wedding of her daughter, Miss Lizzie, to Rev. J. C. Ingham, of Poplar Bluff, Mo. The ceremony will take place in St. Louis, September 14. After October 1, they will be at home at Poplar Bluff.

Miss Russell is the niece of Mrs. Linus Sanford of this city.

New Fall Goods

Beautiful Pattern Hats for Ladies and Children, Lovely Suits, Waists and Skirts, Etc. AT STARTLINGLY LOW PRICES

THE seven months old baby (store) invites you to attend and help it play a new game. This new game is breaking away from the old and joining a new way of merchandising. Come and play your little part in the new game. It has been just seven and one-half months since the management of this store broke away from the fatherly influence of a pioneer merchant and launched out for himself to play the game under conditions existing now. A live store must meet every new condition as it should be met regardless of what the custom or habit might have been yesterday or a week ago. For instance, a short period ago the famous Hobbie Skirt was a winner in some sections of the foreign lands. Today the Hobbie skirt is dead—Passe since August 1 in Paris. Well, if the Hobbie skirt has been rejected in Paris, who should want to use it here? We have a few Hobbie skirts to show you, but we do not ask you to buy them. While we sell anything we have in stock, we cannot play this game right unless we inform you correctly as we know it. Now a word about ourselves. The writer before taking charge of the Toggery was associated with Mr. David A. Glenn as clerk, partner and a manager of the business for over 17 years and many of you are personally known to the manager of the Ladies' Toggery and he will welcome you at any time you desire to visit the store.
